[illegible]

AN ANTI-ABOLITION MEETING IN NEW YORK.

The [illegible] of [illegible] Jefferson was celebrated in New York [illegible] by a supper [illegible] who have headed [illegible] the "Anti-Abolition Society." The object of the association [illegible] is direct hostility and opposition [illegible] Administration, [illegible] to do everything in its power to elect a Democratic President for [illegible].

[illegible] Hon. John [illegible] could not attend but read a letter [illegible].

The following were the regular toasts of [illegible]:

1. [illegible] of Thomas Jefferson—[illegible].

2. The Constitution of the United States—Interpreted by the resolutions of 1798 and '99; [illegible] since 1860.

3. [illegible] over the [illegible] rary ascendancy of brute force over the [illegible] opinion among a people who were born free.

4. The Dred Scott Decision—The enunciation of the great truth that this is a white man's government. "Palsied be the arm that tries to destroy it."

5. [illegible] Chicago Convention—May [illegible] will [illegible] the great American [illegible] in opposition to the European coercive principle of [illegible].

6. The Presidential Contest of 1864—A fair vote or a free fight.

7. [illegible] that never sets.—[illegible] of the Constitution which [illegible] by Webster to be [illegible].

8. New York—Overrun, conquered and subjugated by New Englandism. Let us redeem her.

9. Our Government as it Should be—Not a government such as we now have, making the rich richer, and the poor poorer, but one which would [illegible], equal rights and equal laws to both rich and poor.

10. Forts Lafayette, Warren and McHenry—The [illegible].

11. [illegible]

VOLUNTEER TOASTS.

Freedom of Speech in Congress—May it be long before it is again [illegible].

The States—May they remain as distinct as the [illegible] and again become as harmonious in their action.

Hon. Clement L. Vallandigham—The Champion of [illegible].

Ex [illegible] on being presented [illegible] sion, not [illegible]

[illegible] expectations entertained of him. He wished that Mr. McKeon had been present [illegible]. They then opposed the idea of going to war with those whose blood ran in our own veins. The fathers of the Constitution established the fact that the rights of States can never be put down by armed force.

Until the present desolating war was stopped he said there can be nothing [illegible]. In the face of such important circumstances, it was proper that the memory of Thomas Jefferson should be remembered and commemorated. He spoke of King George [illegible] of the American revolutionists against George III, drawing a parallel between the revolutionary war and our civil contest. He went into American history at great length to elucidate and explain the intellect, the power, and the principle of Jefferson. He compared himself [illegible] of peaceful counsels [illegible] in the [illegible]. An honorable peace, he believed, was far better than a devastating war. England lost the colonies because the King denied to the people the rights guaranteed to them by the great British constitution, and so the North are losing and destroying the unity of the country by neglecting to observe the measures which the fathers of the Republic had bequeathed unto us. If ever we hope to re-establish the Union, we must lay aside the sword and take up the olive branch. There was no other hope for the country; no other way in which we may from

This nettle danger
Pluck the flower safety.

He regarded the peace proposition as the only one that can restore harmony, and he was glad that this idea was the prominent one pervading the minds of the majority of the American people. The war now being waged has not become general because of the long suffering of the American people. Every day of the continuance of this war brings us nearer to a despotism. The training of the American people requires freedom of speech, of religion, and of the press, and by the blessing of God they shall have it.

Mr. Van Loon was the next speaker. He was called upon and at great length responded to the toast referring to the Dred Scott decision. His speech was a very effective one to judge from the loud applause with which it was received.

After some other toasts were disposed of, Mr. Chauncey C. Burr made some eloquent remarks in response to the fifth toast. Alluding to a remark of Cicero, he said that men should not only speak the truth, but the whole truth. The country, according to all human eyes, is now in the throes of death, and the fitting inscription on its tomb must be, "Died by the cowardice of the Democratic party." The Republican party had been as true to its revolutionary principles as the Democratic party had been false to its principles. During the last three abominable years they have every day been abandoning the doctrine on which that party was founded. He then spoke of the coming Chicago Convention, and expressed a doubt whether it would be a Democratic assemblage or something else. What is the meaning of the word conservative? Merely a mitigated abolitionist, or a whole one. There are but two forces in the contest—abolutionism, and the right of the people to rule.

There was no difference between peaceful self-government and coercion; no alternative between Lincolnism and distinct government.—Though the Democratic party may change, democracy itself can no more change than the principles of morality can be altered. The leaders may be frightened off, but the principle itself remains immutable as at the moment when the country was plunged into a vortex of fratricidal blood. He would undertake to say that the present Administration was a total depravity. Mr. Lincoln had no right to use the army and navy to compel or force any unwilling State into the Union, any more than to force an unwilling State out of it. Mr. Burr's remarks were very sharp and caustic, and frequently elicited rounds of applause.

The Spring [illegible] of Wake County Court [illegible]

[illegible]

We tried to beat the two sectional [illegible] in the campaign of 1860 to preserve the Union and [illegible] and prosperity of the country [illegible] will show, that as Lincoln had triumphed by the dissensions and folly of those who had it in their power to defeat him, and as he was elected in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution, [illegible] and a Supreme Court [illegible] party in 1856. [illegible] record.

We never favored or joined in any movement looking to action by North Carolina, until seven of the other States including Virginia, had gone out, and would not have gone [illegible] consequence of the fact that we must fight for or against the other States, and preferring to fight with and for them be the consequences what they might, we pursued the only course left us.

Our files will show that we charged the Abolitionists, North, and the Secessionists, South, with a desire to break up the government, and that if war should result therefrom, they would be responsible, and we have not changed our opinion in that respect.

We were for compromise, conciliation and peace in 1860-'61, and we are for negotiations looking to an honorable peace now; and we hope that as soon as the present campaign shall have ended, whether with disaster or victory to our arms, that the great and good men of the North and South—in office and out of office—will take steps to stay the hand of destruction and restore peace to a bleeding land.

The Editor of the Greensboro Patriot, a man named Cobb—(appropriate name as cobbs are often put to base uses)—having adopted, in his [illegible] of the filth, the slang, vilification and [illegible] of the British jail bird who previously published the State Journal in this city, towards the Editor of this paper, our exchange with the Patriot is withdrawn until such time as the [illegible] who now controls it shall give way to a decent man. We are reliably informed that this Cobb bought into the [illegible] to keep his putrid carcass out of [illegible] and that of all the [illegible] skulking breath pollutes the air, none are meaner than he is.

We shall notice nothing more from this creature, but if he comes in our way we will [illegible] him, as we would other cobbs with [illegible] them.

[illegible]

Yes, we hear that the pigeon hole gentry and the "detailed" [illegible] are having quite a merry time over the proceedings of the two hundred [illegible] above referred to, and we wish them a good time, [illegible] likely to have to go to the front after the 1st of January. To the victors belong the spoils, and we shall advocate sending all able bodied men now in bomb proof offices to the field and filling their places with those who have been disabled in the service. To the People of North Carolina.—In compliance with the wishes of many friends, I announce myself a candidate for the office of Governor of North Carolina, at the election to be held on the first Thursday in August. [illegible]

If elected I will do everything in my power to promote the interests, the honor and the glory of North Carolina, and to secure an honorable peace.
